THE DOTHAN EAGLE

VOLUME 7. DOTHAN, ALABAMA, WEDNESDAY EVENING, JUNE 30TH, 1909 NUMBER 236

SOME ECHOES FROM THE ALABAMA PRESS ASSOCIATION

WHAT THE NEWSPAPER FOLKS ARE SAYING ABOUT DOTHAN AND THIS SECTION OF ALABAMA, MUCH PRAISE

The Alabama Press Association met at Dothan, Ala June 16 and 17 1909 This the metropolis of the wiregrass section has a population of close on to 9 000 There were about fifty members of the Press Association, with their wives and children at this convention

On the first day at 10 o clock the convention was called to order by President Lawrence

Mr Pace of Dothan welcomed the editors of Alabama in an eloquent and admirable speech which was responded to very eloquently by R E L Neil of Selma

Many matters and resolutions were discussed during the morning and afternoon sessions At the adjournment of the afternoon session automobiles were in waiting to take the members of the Press Association on an auto ride and show them the city and surrounding country which was greatly enjoyed by all The farming section around Dothan is especially fine and the crops are in a fine and good condition

On Thursday morning the convention was favored with an intellectual treat in the way of an address delivered by Mr Mooney of Memphis which was received with a rising vote of thanks Several resolutions which had been previously introduced were taken up and discussed and those for the best interest of the convention passed others amended and passed one especially thanking the Commercial Club and the good citizens of Dothan for the courteous manner in which they entertained the visiting editors

At 9 o clock Thursday night the editors were given a banquet in the large dining room in the Hotel Mullin where wit and eloquence and plenty of good things for the inner man was served until about 1 o clock

Dothan is a coming giant and is destined to become one of the leading cities of Alabama situated as it is in the center of the wiregrass section and geographically located ten hundred or more miles from any competitant city It is already a center of three railroads and has prospects of more building and we predict that the census of 1910 will give this flourishing city a population of over 20 000

The Commercial Club of Dothan had arranged an outing for the Press Association to Panama and St Andrews Fla both of which are located on the beautiful bay of St Andrews

At 6 o clock Friday morning we boarded the cars and arrived at Panama City at 10 o clock a m where all who were assigned to hotels in St Andrews boarded motor launches and were carried across the bay to their respective homes and were instructed that in forty minutes to again meet at the docks and be transported back to Panama City where one of the finest dinners was served at Magnolia Park to a hungry crowd of editors

At 2 p m, we were taken on board launches and enjoyed a most delightful ride on St Andrews Bay, and were finally landed at the bath-house, where a great many who had never seen the rolling waves dipped themselves in the cooling waters of the gulf After a most enjoyable afternoon the launches brought the crowd back to the various hotels

At night the people of Panama City gave a ball for the pleasure and in honor of the visiting guests Saturday morning many of us fished while others took in the sights until towards noon when all gathered in a grove in St Andrews where a genuine marine dinner was served It was our privilege and good luck to be allotted to the Bucra Vista hotel which is kept by Mr Simmons who did everything possible for our pleasure and enjoyment

Both St Andrews and Panama City are growing places and the best summer or winter resorts that can be found anywhere

At 2 p m the time arrived when it was necessary for us to say good bye to the good people of St Andrews and we were taken back in launches to Panama City and at 4 30 boarded the special editorial train homeward bound with our hearts filled with love and gratitude for the good people of Dothan Panama and St Andrews for their hospitable treatment of the Alabama Press Association

THEY WHISTLE AT WORK

The Wright Brothers whistle as they work Orville plays the piano a little and that is how they learned their tunes A correspondent who spent hours with them in their workshop says that their favorite air is Schumann s Träumerei That means Dreaming

No wonder this is the tune these men like best They ought to be the happiest men in the world They are dreaming all the time the great dream of a wonderful creation And they are making it come true making it come true with their own hands and brains

When Wilbur drills a hole in a hinge he looks like any other workman the hole isn't any better than one any mechanic could make When Orville puts a nut on a bolt he looks like any other machinist But they both whistle Dreaming '

Not every workman can whistle at his work This is sometimes because he has no dream he outlines no future for himself he doesn't plan to do something in this world

Not every workman with a dream can whistle at his work Because dreams that don t come true are the saddest things there are

But a workman who is making his dreams come true—how can he whistle!

Every bolt nut bolt screw has a meaning every creak of a wrench says Go ahead! Toil on! You are making your dream come true '

Your dream needn t be in airship It may be a happy home, or an education for your children or comfort for loved ones If you want to be happy and able to whistle at your bench, get yourself a dream. Then begin to make it come true

If you can whistle at your bench now it s a good sign—Atlanta Journal

ABOUT VENICE

Below we publish a part of a letter from William Allen White of Emporia Kan who is now doing the other side and has been for some time He is sending home to his paper the Gazette such interesting matter that he absorbs from the old world

There are of course considerable streets in Venice—islands—here the streets are paved and the commerce goes on in the ordinary way—except that there are no horses or carriages in the narrow ways On these islands are hundreds of little shops which make Venice a delight to the tourist almost as keen as Florence Its shops have two distinctive lines not found elsewhere in Italy except sparsely They are Venetian glass beads tableware bric a brac and Venetian lace Every town in Italy and in the world for that matter has its distinctive thing In Emporia it is white face cattle and the Normal School In Florence it is jewelry in Kansas City it is the packing houses and the Kansas City Star in Rome it is marble and bronze in Eldorado it is Bent Murdock in Venice it is glass and lace And they are all beautiful after their kind But the glass and lace of Venice are especially beautiful and astonishingly cheap And the shops little affairs not much larger than a cigar store in a hotel lobby are enticing beyond telling One wonders how so much may be kept and displayed in such a little space For in addition to the beads and tumblers and laces of the town these shops have marbles and bronzes from Rome coralls and tortoise shell work from Naples silverware from Florence and antiques from all over Europe But these are the bait for tourists The stores for the home trade are not as a rule so well managed These things go more hit or miss—after the Italian way in storekeeping We saw feather fans and flatirons displayed in the same store were clocks and candy—and it was a store no bigger than Tibbals s jewelry store in Emporia not a big department store In men s ware the stocks was bad Never before were so many paper collars and made up ties and cheap shirts displayed in fashionable streets There is not a store in Venice as large as Rorabaugh s in Emporia no one that carries an assortment in its own line so wide and so wisely selected The grocery store as Jones and Stone and Frank Kenney and Ireland run it is unknown in Italy The cheese shop is one kind of a shop The canned goods shop is another The green grocery is a sidewalk stand and very little else and rarely does the vegetable dealer carry fruit also The meat seller handles no fish and the fish monger carries no game And to us the most interesting place in Venice was the fish market The time we might have spent in the galleries improving our minds we put in at he fish market—a great block where on food of most varied and tempting kinds mostly new to us was sold The man and woman there were infinitely more interesting to us than the stiff old painted figures in the art galleries As for the churches—the town was full of them But we only went into one—St. Mark's—on a hot day to cool off It looked like a great second hand store filled with brass lamps and with faded pictures of rascally looking saints and hideous martyrs who though doubtless dying in a worthy cause did it so unbecomingly and withal so unmartyrlike, that we chilled sooner than we expected and hurried out into the sunlight.

LAST DAY OF THE DISTRICT CONFERENCE

Public Installation of Officers Took Place at Methodist Church Today at Eleven O'Clock

The Eleventh District Masonic Conference came to a close this evening it being one of the most successful conferences that has been held in the state

Last night degrees were conferred down in the Elks Hall where the sessions were held Grand Secretary Geo A Beauchamp acted as Worshipful Master

Today at 11 o clock the public installation ceremonies were held at the Foster Street Methodist church which was witnessed by a large crowd of people

It is thought best to make the district conferences three days instead of two for there is too short a time for the drilling of the officers

MARRIAGE LICENSES

MR. MOONEY ON "OPPORTUNITIES AND DUTIES OF EDITORS"

There is more in life than mere work There is more in life than the full stomach a house in which to live and clothing upon our backs Man must be amused The strongest national upon the earth today except the United States, is England England pays out 150 000 000 pounds sterling every year for open air recreation for music and for parks

Has your town a library? If it has not a library has it a reading room Have you a local musical club Have you an opera house Have you even a debating society All these things make life in the small town worth living

And again when it rains can a man out in the country get into town If you have a dramatic entertainment tonight can the young man who lives out five miles and has a horse and buggy gather his sweetheart and come to town with her over a smooth road Or will he forego this journey with Id Ly because the bridge across the bayou is broken and the road is filled with ruts from the rain

If these things are so it is your business to start out and change them

What an astounding amount of good work a country editor can do The whole world of endeavor is concentrated right around his door The highest duty of any man is to serve his neighbor No man is in better position to serve his neighbor to serve his community and to serve his country than the country editor or the editor of the small town newspaper

I make these remarks because I am impressed with the fact that we have come to a critical time in the economic life of this country For fifty years the population has been drifting cityward I stood in the City of New York one day in one place for four hours where three great streets converge into one and then open up again into three corners Within this time 1,000 000 souls had passed back and forth There are buildings in New York in which 5,000 people live and work There are blocks in New York which if razed to the ground and the people living in the houses were stood in these blocks, they would be so close together that each could touch the others' elbow

The great factory towns of the north and the cities of the south even, have lured the boy from the farm In the second stories of ill smelling buildings he lives with his wife and his child, Probably in one of two back rooms does the country girl who became his wife on the farm and followed him to the city suffer the first pangs of motherhood

There is a lure in the city for the country boy The lights and life and roar and music draw him on, and then the competition the poor food, the unsanitary dwelling, the dust of the factory and the terror of losing his position drag him down and destroy him

Why has this boy left the country? Often because the country has held out to him little inducements under the old order he was scarcely able to make a living on the land

But within ten years the movement towards the city has reached its flood tide If we lose our country population we lose our national life Backward they are going Back to the soil every man is drawing Jim Hill, the greatest living railroad man preaches one doctrine "back to the farm," not in the old way but back to the farm trained for scientific work

To the front with the agricultural college Never mind the oratorical contest in the Law Department of the State University Go rather to the agricultural school and find out which has written the best essay on how to make sixty

A lot of wise men, including President Taft have been trying to decide what whiskey is

In yesterday's Eagle we published a part of the speech of Mr Mooney, of the Memphis Commercial Appeal made before the Alabama Press Association There was too much for one issue but the balance of his speech appears in today's paper What he said is of interest to every reader Every sentence is full of meaning

A cat may have nine lives We don't know, for it's a small matter All know that they remember seeing but few dead cats A cat is no harder to get rid of though than a paper that is supposed to be on its last legs You often hear it said, that such and such a paper will not live long for it has no backing, or no management but the history of those cases go to show that they live over the limit and surprise the management

The Wright boys are nervy They gave out the other day that they would do some flying, they were to make a test race while all of Washington perched upon the nearby fence to watch them Then after squinting at the weather they decided the wind wasn't right, and put the performance off There were senators and congressmen wanting to see the test trip made, but the boys displayed more nerve by not making the start than they ever did before by flying

LETTER FROM REV W M ANDERSON

Dear Dothan friends —It was quite kind of Editor Hall (but just like him) to send to his pastor, away up in the little town of Chicago, a bundle of Eagles not the Eagles that fly, but the Eagles that talk, and how they talk They talk about their town (Dothan) who blames the Eagle for talking about Dothan It was Homer who said that man which did not speak well of his own country had not behaved well in his own country When the Eagle reached me I laid aside all such uninteresting papers as the Chicago Record Herald, Chicago Tribune and others The Eagle's reading was good to me The advertisements made splendid reading

There was one announcement which I regretted to read, viz the Panama road had put on a Sunday excursion to Panama City If I am not mistaken this is an open violation of the Alabama law That would be interesting for some one on the ground to look up I am sorry the manager of the road saw fit to take this step They are my friends and even with some of them the relationship is closer than friendship Yet, if they are men (and they are), they will respect me the more for speaking the truth The Sunday excursion is destructive to the moral and religious life of Dothan Better no road than destruction But while deacons stewards and elders and many other Sunday school teachers and church workers go on said excursion, the manager feel perfectly justified in the matter Am I narrow? The railroad track which carries our heavy trains is narrow, the tracks of the sea, traced by the great steamers are narrow, still water runs deep and the stream is also narrow and if we use great we are narrow also

Church people my message to you is to listen to the still small voice calling you to a deeper and higher life Remember the flag you carry the banner you hold aloft Your name is Christian remember your name

But circumstances alter cases you say but let us wait until the circumstances arise before we discuss them Dothan has not a crowded population where folks are struggling for breath and business is not so rushing and pressing now I would advise the Sunday school lesson and the morning worship

Once I saw a church door the door of which was this sign Come in rest and pray That was a good sign and not without a true philosophy Oh the rest of holy worship

The law of sacrifice should not be forgotten by us Too much we are seeking pleasure without self denial When will we very be willing to sacrifice a little of our time and business for God's sake and refuse to rob God of His time and our souls of the highest achievements

Is some one saying Well I thought we were rid of our preacher for awhile yet now though a thousand miles away he is still preaching But pardon me the heart is sick and the mouth speaketh from a sort of self generator and my machine runs somewhat automatically Our treasurer and our business are in the same place to speak in Holy Writ Yes a thousand miles away but what of distance in a world of telepathy wireless messages and heart action? What to miles have to do with love The heart grows fonder if LOVE be true

There are some sacred spots on this good earth to me One is consecrated by a grassy sod on my native soil where rests him whom I called father another is where led by the loving hand of the good minister unto the crystal waters I declared my loyalty to my King and still another is a Southern town which by the kindness of its loving people I am permitted to call home There is no place like home and no loved ones like the family
